SWS, Pulse Asia surveys challenged

By JIM CARMICHAEL and Philip C. Stearns

ANALYSTS AND RESEARCHERS IN THE Philippines have begun to challenge the credibility of two of the country's most widely cited opinion polls, the Social Weather Stations (SWS) and Pulse Asia.

The Philippine President has used the polls to gauge public opinion on his administration and to guide policy decisions. The polls have also been used by the media to report on public opinion.

But critics say the polls are flawed. They say the SWS poll is biased because it only surveys people who are registered voters. They say the Pulse Asia poll is biased because it only surveys people who are members of the Pulse Asia network.

They also say the polls are flawed because they do not use a random sampling method. They say the SWS poll uses a quota sampling method, which means that the pollsters select people who are similar to the people they want to study.

They also say the polls are flawed because they do not use a representative sample. They say the SWS poll only surveys people who are registered voters, which means that it does not represent the entire population.

They also say the polls are flawed because they do not use a valid sampling method. They say the SWS poll uses a quota sampling method, which means that the pollsters select people who are similar to the people they want to study.

Suspected London-attack bomb maker jailed

ITON, N.Y. — A British national suspected of plotting the London bombings has been sentenced to 10 years in prison, a U.S. judge said Tuesday. The man, who is 34 years old, was arrested in 2004 and charged with conspiracy to commit terrorism. He is accused of helping to build and transport bombs used in the attacks on London's transport system last July.

Israel launches fresh missile strikes in Gaza

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel launched a series of missile strikes on Gaza Tuesday, hitting a Hamas militant training camp and a residential area. The strikes came in response to a Hamas rocket launch that hit a Jewish settlement in the West Bank. Israel's Defense Ministry said the strikes were aimed at "degrading Hamas's military capabilities." The ministry also said that the strikes had killed several Hamas militants and wounded others. Hamas denied the reports, saying that the strikes were aimed at civilians. The strikes came as Israel and Hamas continued to fight a war in Gaza. Israel has launched several missile strikes on Gaza in recent weeks, and Hamas has launched several rockets into Israel. The conflict has caused a large number of casualties on both sides.

Contempt

THE RECENT CASE of a man who was found guilty of contempt of court for refusing to testify in a case involving the late President Ferdinand Marcos, has raised the issue of the right of a person to refuse to testify in a case involving a former president. The man, who was found guilty of contempt of court, was a close associate of the late President and was accused of having been involved in the Marcos family's alleged financial dealings. The court's decision to find him guilty of contempt of court has been widely criticized, with many arguing that it is a violation of the right of a person to refuse to testify in a case involving a former president. The right of a person to refuse to testify in a case involving a former president is a fundamental right that is protected by the Constitution. It is a right that is essential to the fair trial of a person and is a right that is essential to the integrity of the judicial system. The court's decision to find the man guilty of contempt of court is a clear violation of this right and is a clear violation of the Constitution. What does not kill you
makes you stronger

By Barbara J. Taylor

The president's first 100 days in office have been a whirlwind of activity. He has signed more than 100 executive orders, including the creation of the Department of Homeland Security, the creation of the Office of the Inspector General for the Department of Justice, and the creation of the Office of the Inspector General for the Department of Education. He has also signed the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004, which authorizes $135 billion for the Department of Defense. The president has also signed the National Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004, which authorizes $10.5 billion for the Central Intelligence Agency. The president has also signed the National Science Foundation Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004, which authorizes $5.1 billion for the National Science Foundation. The president has also signed the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004, which authorizes $1.1 billion for the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities. The president has also signed the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004, which authorizes $1.1 billion for the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities. The limits of political accommodation

By William J. Bennett

In the past few days, the president has signed a number of executive orders. One of the most significant of these is the order that creates the Department of Homeland Security. This is a major step in the reorganization of the federal government, and it is one that will have a profound impact on the way in which the federal government operates. The president has also signed the order that creates the Office of the Inspector General for the Department of Justice. This is another major step in the reorganization of the federal government, and it is one that will have a profound impact on the way in which the federal government operates. Malaysia's Legend Hotel
trains the spotlight on delicious Pinoy staples

By Gabriella A. Reyes

If there is one thing to know about Malaysia, it's that it's a multicultural country. With a population of over 30 million, Malaysia is home to a variety of ethnic groups, including Malays, Chinese, Indians, and others. This diversity is reflected in the country's cuisine, which is a blend of different flavors and ingredients.

One of the most popular dishes in Malaysia is Nasi Lemak, a rice-based dish that is often served with a variety of side dishes. Another popular dish is Rendang, a spicy meat dish that is often served with rice. These dishes are a testament to the country's rich culinary heritage.

Malaysia's Legend Hotel is a prime example of this diversity. The hotel is a five-star property that is known for its exceptional service and amenities. It is a great place to stay if you are visiting Malaysia, as it offers a variety of rooms and facilities that cater to different needs.
